March to courthouse marks war protest today

University of Montana war protest activities today for National Meratorium Day consist of a silent vigil, a march downtown to the Missoula County Courthouse, a memorial service on the courthouse lawn and a return march to campus.

The activities planned by the Students for Peace will start at 11:45 a.m. with a silent vigil on the Oval. The walkers will leave from the Oval at about 12:30 and go down University Avenue to Higgins Street, then downtown to the courthouse. The walkers will be using the sidewalks, as the Missoula City Council granted a parade permit on the condition that no one walk in the streets.

A memorial service will be conducted on the courthouse lawn by the Rev. Frank Matule, Christ the King pastor, and the Rev. David Van Dyck, campus minister. Each will give talks on the moral problems of the Indochina war. The talks will also commemorate all who have died in the conflict.

Another part of the service will be the planting of crosses for the war dead by the marchers. Don Schwennesen, journalism graduate student and one of the coordinators of the service, said that the coordinators had tried to get the names of Montana war dead but were unable to do so.

"It's kind of pathetic," Schwennesen said, "but no one seems to know the identity of those who have died. They're mourned only by their families."

The Students for Peace also asked Missoula businessmen to close their businesses between 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. today in memory of the war dead. Schwennesen said that a painter had told him that he was going to quit for the hour.

"It'll be interesting to see," Schwennesen said, "what is more important to businessmen: the war or the money they make in an hour of business."

"YOU'RE ALL miserable sinners," cried Hubert Lindsley, traveling preacher from Berkeley, Calif., as he performed a preach-in on the northeast corner of the Oval yesterday. Lindsley, who calls himself "Holy Hubert," arrived on campus about 11:30 a.m. yesterday and stayed all afternoon preaching about Jesus and dodging hecklers' taunts. (Kaimin photo by Tom Levno)

By Connie Niemeyer

Montana Kaimin Reporter

Central Board met as a committee of the whole to discuss allocations to ASUM sponsored organizations last night.

Women's Lib blasts magazine

The Missoula Women's Liberation group expressed their resentment of the exploitation of the University of Montana students and campus in a letter drafted to the Mademoiselle magazine staff yesterday.

Members of the magazine's staff are in Missoula shooting film, seeking models and conducting interviews for a feature on the University.

The letter is as follows:

"Missoula Women's Liberation resents the exploitation of the students and campus of the University of Montana by Mademoiselle magazine, a publication devoted to creating an artificial demand for women's cosmetics and fashions. This use of campus facilities suggests implicit approval of Mademoiselle's view of women as passive sexual objects, an approval which is non-existent.

"The women of the University community do not wish to become fodder for the capitalist profit machine of the New York fashion bureaucracy. The Women's Liberation movement is committed to presenting the reality of women as full human beings."

consideration of the budget for the Montana Kaimin whose original request was for $39,800. Bill Blake, Kaimin business manager, said the amount presented was a bare minimum for successful operation, but the budget ended up being cut by $7,456.

The Book was cut entirely with the reservation that the allocation be frozen until a better format is presented for consideration.

The allocation for intramurals includes amounts for outdoor recreation and women's intramurals. This was in a move to coordinate expenses of various groups.

Much of the cutting in funds this year is for travel, both in-state and out-of-state, for banquets and for student salaries. Consideration for women's intercollegiate took about 45 minutes. A large delegation from this group with Zona Lindemann, coach, presented their explanations and need for sufficient funds but their allocation was cut from $11,942 to $7,000. A motion on the floor at one time would have cut them off with no funds.

A stipulation was included in the final motion that no bowling team travel expense be funded by CB.

At a meeting in UC 360 tonight the following group requests will be considered: International Association, Debate and Oratory, Associated Language Clubs, Fine Arts Tour, Soccer, Rifle, Silvertip Skydivers and Grizzly Rodeo Clubs. Also Men's Varsity Bowling Team, Jazz Workshop, Orchestras, Student Ambassadors, Model United Nations, Folk Dancers, Music Educators National Conference, and the Pre-Med Club will be considered.

The committee will reconvene tonight at 7.

Preacher assails sinners, sex, cigarettes

By Pat Murdo

Montana Kaimin Reporter

Hubert Lindsley, a traveling preacher from California who calls himself "Holy Hubert," appeared on the oval of the University of Montana campus late yesterday morning and held large groups of students at bay for the entire afternoon.

Waving his arms and chanting as if he were selling a magic elixir, Holy Hubert attracted a crowd of about 300 "miserable sinning devils" who listened to him and heckled him.

"There isn't a sinner on this campus who can do good. You're all evil," Hubert proclaimed.

Reactions and student questions abounded: "If we're all so bad, why are you wasting your time on us?"

Hubert: "Because Jesus Christ gave his life for people as miserable as you."

Hubert challenged one person in the crowd to come into the center area and show his knowledge about the Bible. Amid shouts of "our savior" the student stepped out. Hubert asked him to show anything bad from the Bible. The student in turn asked Hubert to show anything good from it.

The impasse ended when a person from the crowd answered Hubert's question: "The hero died in the middle of the novel... I heard he came back though."

Hubert, who is traveling to universities across the nation after preaching for six years on the Berkeley campus, generally condemned all those listening saying that they cared only about themselves. "Don't think I'm putting people down," he commented, "They've never been anywhere else."

Throughout the sermonizing Hubert disputed with students on Mormon philosophy, Black Panthers, the Hebrew history of religion and the meaning of the Hebrew word for God, the meaning of love, the evil of men in wars and racism.

Hubert said that he had a rich Jew supporting him — Jesus Christ—and added that he doesn't like to talk about money. "If I was interested in money," he said, "I wouldn't be doing what I'm doing. Money is not evil if you use it right. Feed the poor, stupid."

Love and sex also played an important part in Hubert's preaching. One student cried, "Give me some love."

Hubert answered, "You relate love to a sex experience, you sick mind." There followed questions about Hubert's sex life. "Are you impotent, Hubert?" to which he answered, "Ask my grandchildren."

Another Hubert response, "My wife doesn't even use sugar in her coffee; she doesn't need to, she's got Hubert."

Hecklers who were smoking cigarettes or pipes got it from Hubert too. Instead of answering their questions he would say as he did to one student, "If you get smart you'll quit smoking."

Condemnation of drug users also figured in his preaching. One student asked how he could condemn

Mine fire still burning; rescue efforts continue

KELLOGG, Idaho (AP)—Rescue workers were near reaching a main access shaft last night in the hot smoky Sunshine silver mine in which 24 persons have died and 58 were missing, a mine spokesman said.

Mine officials said 58 men were unaccounted for; 108 others escaped to safety shortly after the fire broken out in the nation's richest silver mine shortly after noon Tuesday.

Marvin Chase, vice president and general manager of the mine, said rescue workers were sealing off some areas of the mine and pumping air into the tunnels.

The mine manager said the fire apparently started with spontaneous combustion in timbers at about the 3,700-foot level in an inactive section. He said the continued presence of smoke in the shafts indicated the fire was still burning more than 36 hours after it first was reported.

The bodies of 19 men were being removed from the 3,100 foot level yesterday, Chase said. Five others were recovered earlier. Chase said he had no idea where the missing men were located.

"The best indication the men are still alive is the large amount of air being sent down," he said. He said he believed surviving miners were opening valves of the air supply system to breathe.

A Sunshine spokesman said the missing men have not been heard from since the fire broke out.

Kellogg is a town of 7,000 in northern Idaho, 70 miles east of Spokane, Wash.

One survivor, Bryone Schulz, 21, said he helped 31 others to safety. "There was no organization—nobody knew what to do or how to do it," he said. "Everyone was just in an uproar."

Cause of the fire was not officially listed by mine officials but Schulz said some miners regularly smoked underground despite rules prohibiting it.

"They're not allowed to smoke but there's quite a bit of it... especially in the shaft," he said.

Anaconda Co. officials said an 11-man rescue team would leave Silver Bow County Airport today for Kellogg to assist in rescue operations for men trapped in the Sunshine Mine.

Air Force planes will airlift equipment from Pennsylvania to aid in the search and rescue operations, a spokesman said at Fairchild Air Force Base, Spokane, Wash.

Farmers' Union urges support for constitution

GREAT FALLS (AP)—The Montana Farmers' Union, the largest of Montana's agricultural organizations, yesterday endorsed the proposed constitution that will be submitted to the voters at the June 6 primary.

Clyde Jarvis, president of the organization, said the board of directors studied and debated the pros and cons of the new document prior to deciding to recommend to its 8,000 plus membership to support the document.

"We were impressed with the unified Montana Department of Agriculture created by the convention delegates," Jarvis said.

He also cited the extension of a special levy authority for all sectors of agriculture as a plus factor for farmers and ranchers.

"The section establishing single-member districts is of specific importance," Jarvis added, "because it guarantees rural areas continued representation, despite the growing urbanization of the state."

The organization took no stand on the three side issues—the unicameral legislature, gambling and capital punishment.

Jarvis said his organization was going to urge everyone to vote for the new document.

"It is a people's document and the best way to insure that it remains that way will be to have everyone voting," he said.

The war on the war goes on

James Reston, as befits a potentate of The New York Times, has an establishment mind. This means he cannot imagine a larger issue than the question, 'Who is going to run the present system?' He thinks he is a big liberal because he does not want Nixon to run it.

Indeed, so intent is he on stopping Nixon that he would like to stop all demonstrations as a necessary prelude to stopping the President (which he treats as the necessary prelude to stopping the war). Big liberals think elections decide everything. Actually, they come closer to deciding nothing.

Reston's arguments are the same old dreary establishment drive—that demonstrations turn people off, encourage the enemy and lock our officials into their intransigence. This, he threatens, will cause Nixon's re-election.

That is an easy threat to make—like telling a child if he doesn't stop crying by the end of the day, the sun will set. The odds for Nixon's re-election have been overwhelming all through the period when he said he would make the war no longer an issue by 1972. If he can keep the promise, and do his countdown, electoral tinkering with the economy and showboat around Moscow as he did around Peking, he is unbeatable.

The one thing that can beat him is to keep the war an issue, to maintain the moral objection to it while selfish arguments about fewer American casualties are used on timorous political types. That will not happen if people are scared by James Reston talk into conventional electioneering. That is what destroyed the war-protest candidacy of Pete McCloskey. That is what took the edge off 1970 student activism. People worked for candidates, which meant they could not raise "divisive" issues, and candidates hedged and evaded, as the typical campaign demands—with the result that, less than six months after Cambodia and Laos, the My Lai scandal and the Kent State murders, the war was not an effective issue in the '70 elections.

There is nothing Nixon would like more than to have all the kiddies go off and stuff envelopes for their favorite candidates. This would dissipate their energies in the Democrats' suicidal current exercise in mutual mauling. It would reduce issues to a narrow and partisan base—e.g., who is the best antiwar candidate?

The only way to defeat Nixon (if there is a way) is to defeat the war. That cause, good in itself, will also benefit any candidate—whatever he may be—running against Nixon in November. The real enemy is not Nixon but the war. The real aim should not be to put McGovern (or whomever) into the White House but to bring peace to Vietnam.

Wills, the author of Nixon Agonistes, has written for Esquire, New York, Playboy and National Review.

Statement of grief

Editor: Thursday is the National Moratorium Day. The University of Montana Students for Peace is organizing events to express mourning in accordance with that day.

We shall express our grief in fashions accepted by this culture and request Missoula businessmen to close their shops between 1 and 2 p.m. as they do on Good Friday, to observe and participate in the events of mourning we have planned.

From 11:45 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. a silent vigil will be observed in the Oval. At this time, we shall be praying silently, meditating or solemnly thinking of our husbands, children, brothers, friends and other humans killed in the Southeast Asian war.

Following the vigil, participants will proceed to the Missoula County Courthouse lawn carrying approximately 150 crosses representing dead Montana veterans and other U.S. and Vietnamese citizens.

At 1 p.m. on the Courthouse lawn, a memorial service will be lead by three Missoula ministers.

Perhaps the community can realize the extent of our grief when they understand that many of the men who have died are our husbands. The result has left many of widows with children who will never know a father's kindness. Perhaps the community can understand our grief when they realize many of us will never know a man's love or experience the joy of being a parent since so many American men have died in Vietnam. Other Students for Peace will never see their sons or know their love and respect again.

The death that has occurred in Vietnam is a grave thing that is close to our hearts and minds. For this reason we invite everyone to participate in our mourning. Additionally, we ask participants and observers to regard and respect the planned events as expressions of grave loss, sadness and mourning.

Righteous indignation

Editor: Professor Van Meter's righteous indignation about my comments concerning a possible increase in radioactivity resulting from cratering explosions is misplaced. His personal attacks on me are inexcusable coming from a normally-sober scientist.

The statements I quoted about radioactivity associated with large-scale explosions, phosphate reduction and coal-burning plants were made by reputable scientists at the recent meeting of the American Nuclear Society. They were not pulled out of thin air.

The major point, which the professor seems to be missing, is that any increase in radioactivity no matter how small, poses a biological hazard. It is up to the general public to make or to significantly influence the decision whether to go ahead with such operations based on their own informed assessment of the benefits and risks involved. This should not be decided only by those who are creating the risks.

Incidentally, I have learned that the Environmental Protection Agency is sending specialists from several laboratories to assess the possible hazard from radioactivity associated with phosphate reduction plants in Montana. Apparently, this concern is shared by others. MEYER CHESSIN professor, botany

ROTC discredited

Editor: In response to "Former Cadet Battalion Commander" Lieutenant Colonel, ROTC, Steve Garrison's letter dated 2 May 1972, I wish to make several comments:

- To think that the military is run by its officer corps only shows your ignorance toward the military. The officer who thinks he is running the show is almost always a ROTC 2nd Lt.
- Since most ROTC graduates are now given early outs and those who go the full route seldom achieve any personal responsibility—except yelling and screaming at newly drafted inductees—an education in military history, law, and leadership is not worth the effort to walk to class. The amount of law you are taught could be inscribed on the tip of a pin with room to spare.

- To classify what ROTC can fill your gullible head with in four years as "experience" is just plain, everyday, ordinary horseshit.

- "As long as we need officers, we will need the ROTC." Come on colonel Steve, you don't really believe that. Have you ever heard of OCS or OCC. Ask anyone in the military, besides another ROTC officer, but watch out, if he stops laughing long enough to catch his breath, he might puke on you.

This response to future General Garrison is not meant to be an argument against ROTC in favor of any other military institutions, or in favor of the military in any form. It is merely to point out a few of the absurdities the military is capable of getting gullible ROTC colonels to believe.

Peace and Love, 1st Lt. MICHAEL McPHERSON, USMC JAG, senior, law

Dear 'picket'

Editor: Dear "Pickett", Come on now, instead of protesting against the building of a pancake house over Rattlesnake Creek why don't you find something more constructive to do with your time? We in the city of the two Wallas have lived with a concrete stream bed for our Mill Creek to flow through for quite some time now without insult or injury to our fish population. It is specially constructed for their benefit from one end of our city to the other, even winding under buildings in the downtown area. This has prevented much costly flooding within the city, and believe me, we had a doozie of a flood in the early 30's.

Betcha Smitty's Pancake House will landscape the banks of Rattlesnake Creek so pretty that the fish will love it.

Vietnamese student tells War views

By The College Press Service

Doan Hong Hai is from Bien Hoa province in southern Vietnam, where his father works as a diesel mechanic. Doan came to the United States in 1966, with assistance from an American family, and entered Syracuse University. He has also done graduate study at Harvard's School of Architecture, and is now finishing a research project in urban studies at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Doan is also traveling throughout the U.S. speaking on the U.S. role in Southeast Asia, and the impact of that policy on his people.

This interview was conducted by CPS correspondent Fred Bernstein in March at Indiana State University in Terra Haute, Indiana.

CPS: Doan, why do you feel it is important for the American people to hear a South Vietnamese student's view of the war in Vietnam?

Doan: For the first 10 years, the U.S. government and the Saigon regime have misinformed the American people about the present conflict in Vietnam. The American people are made to think that the Vietnam war is a civil war. Actually the Vietnam war is an independence war of the Vietnamese people against a foreign oppression. The Vietnamese people are fighting not against the American people but against the U.S. troops in Vietnam, and the Vietnam policies of the U.S. government. I feel it is important for me to tell the American people these things, especially since President Nixon's recent escalation of the bombing.

CPS: American troop strength has decreased in Vietnam in the last two years. Has the war also decreased?

Doan: No. It is related to the Vietnamization program. Vietnamization has withdrawn some,—not all, but some American troops, but at the same time the air war has been increased tremendously. As a result the war is not winding down, it is stepping up. As the American people have learned, in the last few days even the bombing has increased tremendously.

CPS: How do the Vietnamese people in the south interpret Nixon's Vietnamization policy?

Doan: The term Vietnamization is something very difficult for the Vietnamese people to understand. Also, the distinction of North Vietnam and South Vietnam. Vietnam is one country. The Vietnamese people are one people. We do not know of "North" Vietnam and "South" Vietnam. We do not know of "North" and "South" Vietnamese.

We are simply Vietnamese. We cannot see Vietnamese people coming down from the North to help other Vietnamese people as enemies. But foreign invaders are very easily identified as enemies. We do not understand how an American president is going to Vietnamize us. We are already Vietnamese.

CPS: Then what is Vietnamiza-tion?

Doan: Vietnamization is really a way of escalating the war. It costs about $38,000 to train an American soldier and send him to Vietnam; it costs only $400 to train a mercenary in South Vietnam to do the same job. The $37,600 saved with every Vietnamese mercenary hired by the U.S. goes to buying planes, bombs and electronic warfare. And so the bombing is escalated.

On an average day in the war, bombing kills 300 Vietnamese people. This is Vietnamization. It is a racist policy. It is a way of reducing the number of white corpses by increasing the number of yellow corpses. Your Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker said Vietnamization is going to change the color of the corpses.

CPS: Do the people in southern Vietnam recognize the Thieu government?

Doan: The regime in the southern part of Vietnam should not be called a government. It is a puppet regime. The students, the women, the union workers, the Catholics and the Buddhists—they are demonstrating in the streets against the Thieu regime. They demand an end to this regime. They demand the total and complete withdrawal of the U.S. from Vietnam, militarily and economically. They ask for a definite date for the withdrawal, and an immediate end to all bombing. The U.S. has no right to intervene in the political affairs of Vietnam, and the Thieu regime is nothing more than U.S. intervention.

CPS: One of Nixon's peace proposals called for the resignation of Thieu. Why hasn't Nixon's 8-point proposal been acceptable to the Vietnamese people?

Doan: Nixon's 8-point proposal is an excuse to escalate the air war. Point 3 of his program reads: There will be a free and democratic presidential election in South Vietnam within six months of an agreement.

The Vietnamese people cannot understand how the president of the U.S. has the right to say there will be or won't be, there should be or shouldn't be, an election in Vietnam. It is up to the Vietnamese people alone to decide whether there will be an election.

Nixon's point also calls for Thieu to resign one month before this election and that the Chairman of the Senate will take over the office. The Chairman of the Senate is Thieu's right-hand man. Thieu also has 400,000 "secret police" to carry out another fraudulent election very easily, to continue the structure of the present regime.

Another thing must be mentioned. The Vietnamese people have said if a date is given for this complete and total withdrawal, the prisoners of war will be released, so that the last prisoners of war will be released on the given date with the last of the U.S. troop withdrawals. President Nixon could not answer this in his 8-point program. He leaves it out completely. He does not want to end the war in Vietnam.

CPS: The U.S. government claims if it withdraws completely, there will be a bloodbath in Vietnam. Is there any truth to that?

Doan: I couldn't conceive of this bloodbath. The Vietnamese people have been involved in a struggle against foreign intervention for four thousand years, from the French for 25 years, from the U.S. for 10 years, but as soon as the U.S. troops withdraw from Vietnam we are supposed to kill each other off, our brothers, sisters, our relatives. It is a lie. On the other hand, Nixon carries out a massive and indiscriminate kind of bombing every day. A million people have been killed in Vietnam.

On the average day of bombing 300 people are killed. These are the people President Nixon said the U.S. has come over to save. You never hear him talk about this bloodbath.

CPS: Doan, what can the American people do to end the war in Vietnam?

Doan: As a Vietnamese, I feel it is not appropriate for me to offer alternatives because I do not want to interfere in the internal affairs of the U.S. But I believe the American people are very capable of devising a creative and active program for peace in Vietnam. The Vietnamese people have been struggling for peace for 4,000 years. I think it is important for the American people to keep working for peace, that they should not give up after one or two demonstrations.

It is a long struggle.

Fiedler lecture held in SC to save money

The Leslie Fiedler lecture, April 27, was held in Science Complex 131 because it was less expensive than renting the University Center Ballroom, Tim Parrot, UC program coordinator, said.

Parrot also said less people were expected to attend the former University of Montana English professor's talk.

The Science Complex lecture room seats about 250 people with additional room on the aisles for about 50 more people.

Parrot said Program Council estimated 300 people to attend the lecture.

He said reports that some people were turned away from the lecture are false. He said about 25 people came, looked in and left, but there was still room for them in the room.

To use the UC Ballroom for one night costs $150 for production—lights, power and public address system. The lecture room in the Science Complex has a built-in public address system and there is no rental fee.

The University Theater was booked the night of the lecture with a dance recital rehearsal, and the Music Building was not checked because of previous unavailability.
